

AGGRESSIVE, RESISTANT & DELINQUENT YOUTHS: MEETING THE TREATMENT CHALLENGE

17 AUDIO LECTURES

COURSE DESCRIPTION

The treatment of aggressive, noncompliant and delinquent youths presents significant challenges to professionals in the fields of mental health, social services and education. Responding to these challenges often stretches resources to the breaking point. Longstanding and all too often intractable behavior can disrupt and even endanger families and classrooms. Outpatient treatment is often difficult. Many must be cared for in inpatient or residential settings or, finally, in the juvenile justice system.

In recent years advances in research have greatly enhanced our understanding of these youths. Likewise, our ability to effectively intervene has dramatically improved. This groundbreaking course gathers leading experts from Massachusetts General Hospital, Harvard Medical School and around the country to translate the latest research into practical approaches and effective treatments at home, school and in the community.
