

We Hear: Tyra Banks, Miss America & more...

By Inside Track

Friday, February 18, 2011

• That supermodel Tyra Banks tuition bill for her two-week executive education program at Harvard Business School is a whopping $31,000. Wonder whether the biz brains at Hah-vahd think that's a wise investment . . .

• That Miss America 2011 Teresa Scanlan, whose pageant platform was educating kids about eating disorders, will take part in the 14th annual Harris Center Public Forum at Harvard Business School next month. The beauty queen will meet with Boston high school gals to discuss "Body Image and the Media" before fashionista Diane von Furstenberg headlines the forum hosted by Massachusetts General Hospital .

• And that Huntington Theatre Company artistic director Peter DuBois is (almost) heading to the Great White Way. DuBois will direct NYC's Roundabout Theatre Company's off-Broadway premiere of "Sons of the Prophet" by Stephen Karam this fall after he works his magic on the play's world premiere at the Huntington on April 1. Bra-vo!

Don't forget to watch 'Track Gals'—the Inside Track's new TV show—at noon on Sundays on TV38 and at 12:30am Sunday mornings (Saturday night) on WBZ Channel 4. Or watch the latest episode now at