

English in the Hospital – Point to Talk

English in the hospital – Point to talk is a 44-page, easy-to-use booklet developed at the Massachusetts General Hospital to aid Limited English-Proficient patients (LEP) in communicating with their caregivers.

Use of the booklet requires no prior knowledge of another language. Patients point to the words depicting what they would like to say in their language and the English translation can be read directly underneath. This procedure can be reversed by the caregiver to provide a response.

For patients who do not read in their language, two pages of illustrations can provide the basis for rudimentary communication, which could be critical in emergency situations.

English in the hospital – Point to Talk is available in the following languages:
